Information About Live Attenuated Seasonal Influenza Vaccines (by Nasal Spray)

- What is influenza?
 - Influenza is an acute illness of the respiratory tract caused by influenza viruses. The virus mainly spreads by respiratory droplets. The disease is characterized by fever, sore throat, cough, runny nose, headache, muscle aches and general tiredness. It is usually self-limiting with recovery in two to seven days.
 - Serious infection or complications can also occur in healthy individuals.
- Why children aged 6 months to 11 years are recommended as a priority group to receive seasonal influenza vaccination?
 - Seasonal influenza vaccination is recommended for children 6 months to 11 years for reducing influenza related complications such as pneumonia, hospitalization, and death.

I have read and understood the above information.
